

Sober Parenting Journey

Group begins in January 2017

Parenting while in recovery is hard — we get it.

You are not alone. Designed to empower parents and caregivers who have a history of addiction and who want to spur confidence and optimism in a successful recovery, improve parenting skills, and set goals for the future.

- Explore past and present patterns of compulsive and addictive behaviors that influence your choices.
- Seize the opportunity to create a new path that involves personal recovery, accountability, positive actions, and hard work.
- Begin to understand and experience healing old and new wounds.

Sober Parenting Journey will help you build self-esteem, communicate better with your children, manage stress, and address the impact of triggers that lead to relapse.
